The University of West Attica Career, Technology Transfer & Innovation Office, in collaboration with AthenaRF, is hosting a panel of female leaders, professionals and role models in their field for Equalising opportunities for women entrepreneurs.

The outcomes of the event will be broadcasted during the 2nd AthenaRF Global Conversation on Female Leadership. Taking place under the theme Making the Case for Female Leadership, the conversation will feature parallel discussions that will be centrally moderated from London by BBC World's Ten Hubs, who will connect live to forums to get a sense of what progress has been made regarding women's empowerment, where the major challenges and opportunities for women-led, who are the real change makers globally, and what can be done to promote diversity and inclusivity.

Discussion will focus on the following questions:

1. Do our societies need more women leaders & why?
2. What progress has been achieved in the past years regards women in leadership in your country?
3. Where are the major challenges and opportunities?
4. Who are the real change-makers, can you think of leading women who are making or have made a difference in your country?
5. What can be done to promote diversity, inclusivity and women in leading positions?
6. What does "Female Leadership" mean to you? Is it different to "Male Leadership, and how?
